CHIEFS ROSTER SWELLS

Two more names were added to the official roster of the Atlanta Chiefs today--veteran Mike Ash and sophomore pro, Sonny Carter.

Ash, who is one of the smaller players in the North American Soccer League, has been big in performance during his four years of play in the United States. The 5-4, 27-year old native of England begins his third campaign with the Chiefs after competing in all 24 games played last year at one of the key midfield positions.

His experienced presence is one of the factors for optimism this season.

Sonny Carter, who became the first American born player on the Chiefs roster last year, will begin his second season with Atlanta. The 23-year old 6-0, 165 pound native of Macon, Georgia, saw very limited action last year at his post at fullback, but the valuable experience he picked up will enable him to see more action this year, according to coach and general manager, Vic Rouse.

Sonny, who was a varsity starter for Emory University as an undergraduate, is attending Emory Medical school in his second year.
